
AFTERTASTE

GOURMET GRAFFITI

I've been taking photos of Brooklyn's food-related graffiti. I noticed that food tags are often written near one other, and I was excited by this anonymous activity, interested that people are identifying themselves this way. I imagine they gather at a wall to collaborate on a recipe for a meal in the street.

— Amelia Coulter

